Our first general meeting of the year on August 4 is combined with a CE course that every one of us should take. Michelynn McKnight, Library Director at the Norman Regional Hospital in Oklahoma, will teach strategies and tactics for information professionals to prove their worth. In working with our CE chairs, Susan Ulrich and Candace Walker to bring this course to you, I have had the privilege of talking with Michelynn several times. This course will help you no matter what environment you’re in—hospital, academic, corporate, or independent contractor. The Regional Medical Library is bringing this course to NCNMLG as a result of the work and follow-up on its E-Resources symposium, focus groups, and surveys. This is your course. Don’t miss it! If that isn’t enough, Tilly Roche will see that you get a delicious lunch!

At that August 4 meeting, we also will be voting on increasing the annual dues from $15 to $25. At $15 our annual dues are lower than the average for other MLA chapters. Raising the dues from $15 to $25 will go a long way to addressing the chapter’s operating deficit. At a straw vote, on the listserv, there were 9 responses for the increase, and 2 qualified responses against. Please come to this meeting to vote!

Since the 2000 Joint Meeting in February, your officers have worked very hard to analyze the causes of the chapter’s operating deficit and make changes in the chapter’s policy and procedure manual to address them. At the August 4 board meeting, the board will be discussing and voting on policy changes having to do with cost containment: printed newsletters, travel allowances and CE and program expenses. Elsewhere in this issue and in your dues renewal form, there is a notice about the change from print to electronic distribution. Board meetings are open to all members. If you have any questions, please don’t hesitate to contact me.

Sometime in August, you will receive your annual dues notice. Roger Brudno, Membership Chair, has spent the past two years upgrading the membership database software to handle Library ID’s.

Now that the upgrade is completed, Roger will return to the usual schedule for mailing dues notices. That means that the deadline for the membership directory is October 1. Please get your renewals in right away so you won’t be left out of the directory! The directory is an invaluable tool for networking.

As this newsletter goes to press, the Joint Meeting planning committee is assuring a not-to-miss meeting! The speakers have been selected and confirmed: Eugenie Prime, Sherrilynn Fuller, Susan McGlammery, Pat Muller, and our own Gail Persily. Who are they and why should you hear them? Watch our upcoming publicity to find out!

Also, at press time, Ed Bierman, Electronic Resources co-chair, has spent countless hours making the chapter website more member-focused and content driven. It has been difficult to get something compatible with our NCNWEB design, which won the MLA Chapter of the Year award in 1997, the chapter’s 50th anniversary year. The sleek, dramatic 1997 design is an image map, the code for which was lost. We hope you will like the change and find the website useful in accessing the chapter’s services, planning your time at the Joint Meeting, and connecting to MLA, PSRML, and other sites. Website changes will be announced on the general listserv.

The 2000-2001 officers and committee chairs are listed elsewhere in this newsletter. As you can see, there are some openings. Doing the work of the committees and attending the board meetings are great ways to network with your colleagues. It’s a way to meet your peers and grow professionally. I post openings on the listserv, and if there’s no response, I’ll phone. I would love to hear from you.

The upcoming year is an exciting one. There are too many for me to thank individually here for your work with me this past spring, but a big thank you to the 1999-2000 board, the Joint Meeting planning committee, the 2000-2001 board, and other members who are doing so much. I’m looking forward to this year and hope you are too!

CONFERENCES

The California Millennium Conference is the end product of over 20 library organizations coming together to plan a day of speakers and exhibits aimed at the library community. This conference will take place on Saturday, November 11, 2000, at the Santa Clara Convention Center. The CMC is designed to expose librarians and library supporters to information about broad trends in society, public policy, the economy, culture and libraries. Most of the speakers are outside the library profession, and the library speakers are mostly from outside of California. The conference is partially funded by a grant from the California State Library. Keynote speakers will be:

* Dr. Kevin Starr, State Librarian, on "Honoring the Past".
* Bran Ferren, futurist (formerly with the Disney Co.), on "Imaging the Future"
* John Perry Barlow, founder of the Electronic Frontier Foundation on "The Net-Induced Social Revolution"
* Watts Wacker, futurist and author of "The Visionary's Handbook", on "How to Be Your Own Futurist!"

Many other activities and speakers are planned. Among them: a debate between Steve Coffman and Michael Gorman on the future of library services, a town hall meeting on the future of the profession, and an all-day author's fair.

More information can be found on the website at www.cmc-2000.org. Registration is $125 for the CMC, and $175 for both the CMC and the California Library Association Conference which starts the next day at the Santa Clara site.

What Have You Done for Yourself Lately?

We live in interesting jobs. It’s not exactly a Chinese curse, but it’s a rare day when we don’t rediscover our ignorance, deal with balky bureaucrats and clients, or, on a good day, have an urge to share an information or management coup with someone who can appreciate what it involved. These problems and urges aren’t unique to medical librarians, but they can’t be met by joining Toastmasters or the Chamber of Commerce.

Enter, of course, our local, regional, national and international library groups and events. We all know we need one or more of ‘em, but most of us wish someone else would do it. Enter right stage, the Academy of Health Information Professionals (AHIP) accreditation process.

You can gain and renew full AHIP membership solely by maintaining and upgrading your professional competence, but qualifying points may also include contributions to the profession. These include professional association participation, authoring, and conference participation. One becomes a Senior or Distinguished member by adding contribution points to continuing education achievements.

Conference Participation
Meeting attendees earn 1 point per meeting day (maximum of 3 per year, or 15 for the five-year evaluation span). Documentation isn’t needed for MLA or chapter meetings. Others require a copy of the registration form. (CE before or after a meeting is credited as CE, not as meeting involvement). Of course, presenters, moderators, and demonstrators all earn credit, from one to 5 points per meeting.

Professional Associations
These include MLA, consortia, SLA, ALA, CLA, ASIS, and other information-related organizations and chapters. An MLA chapter Committee member earns 5 points per year of service; the Chair earns 10 points. Service at MLA’s national level ranges from 10 points for committee service to 25 points for an officer, director, board member.

Authorship
Letters to the Editor don’t earn AHIP credit, but contributions to local, national and international publications win from one point (for a bylined newsletter article or service as an MLA external book reviewer for a single chapter) to 50 points (for the solo writing or editing of a book or for editing a journal). Articles, columns, and reviews in peer-reviewed journals earn from 2 to 15 points, Union List compilers and Serials Holdings coordinators earn 15 and 3 points respectively. Mailing list moderators or web site managers earn 40 points for each year’s work. Other contributions that earn AHIP credit include similar work in other associations, contributions to MLA’s Oral History Program, work on funded grants and formal consultations.

Look up AHIP’s points schedule for yourself at http://www.mlahq.org/academy/points2.

As ever, please send questions or comments to Justine Roberts at jr4939@itsa.ucsf.edu.
